

Lifeline Assistance

Lifeline helps eligible households lower the monthly cost of communications service. Federal Lifeline may provide a discount of up to $9.25 on qualifying internet or bundled phone and internet service, or up to $5.25 on qualifying voice-only service. Texas Lifeline may provide an additional discount of up to $3.50 on qualifying residential phone service. The discount available depends on the service and the household's eligibility.

A household may qualify through participation in an eligible assistance program or based on income. The federal income limit is 135% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines; the Texas state income limit is 150%. Only one Lifeline benefit is allowed per household. The benefit cannot be transferred to another person, and continued eligibility may need to be confirmed each year.
